Final Report Unavailable

Project Overview
Shannon collected data such as storm channel water quality, storm drain location and known National Pollution Discharge Information System permitted locations to determine contamination and point sources. He incorporated GIS mapping to help located those areas that may need to be more closely monitored in the future. His project identified Best Management Practices for point of contamination (POC) sources.